

Morse Code operators are the 2nd largest group of "ham Operators." When all other modes of communication fail morse operators are able to get the message through. The Amateur Radio Service and Homeland Defense require that this mode of communication be protected and preserved.